

Now is the Time to MODERNIZE or BUILD Your Home

ATTIC SPACE CAN BE MADE BRIGHT ROOM

Attractive Guest Chamber Can Be Created With Little Expense

Every woman wants her home to reflect charm and personality. One of the surest ways to attain this is by originality, and one place where she can turn loose her talents is the attic.

An attic guest room can be created from waste space with little expense. The walls may be made from fibre board, in a panel and wainscot design. The ceiling, which can be a few shades darker, may be blocked with a scallop of the darker shade bordering the wall.

Fibre board can be handled in a number of ways to produce an almost limitless variety of decorative treatments. With a simple tool for beveling and grooving, it can be fashioned into large or small panels, a straight-line design, or a tile or masonry effect.

BUILD WINDOW SEAT
This material can be used for either old or new interiors. It is easily adaptable for attic rooms and on new construction it can be applied directly to studs and joists.

The wood floors may be scraped, painted or varnished. A window seat built in below the attic dormer window makes a pleasant place to read or sew. A shelf may form the top of the dressing table. A closet with space for the guest's clothing and adequate light plus complete essentials.

Having acquired the background for a guest room, the housewife with an eye on the budget may employ a number of decorative schemes that are easy on the family pocketbook.

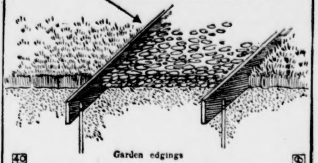

INTERIOR DECORATION
Gingham is inexpensive, colorful and easily washable. This material in a blue and white check with a binding of red braid might be used for the bedspread, dressing table skirt, and as a valance for curtains of plain white voile.

A chair with a red slip cover would add a touch of color and a

Spray Mixture Controls Pest On Rose Bush

One of the world's most beautiful and most popular flowers is the rose. Thousands of people grow them every year. If you have been disappointed in your roses, it may be because they have been damaged by insects.

From the time the young leaves are forming, roses are in constant danger of destruction by a group of insects. All of them can be controlled by a single spray.

A room of this type, which follows no particular period, is an excellent place for discarded furniture that does not fit in elsewhere. A little patchwork, elbow grease, ingenuity, paint and varnish will make friends of the most discarded group of furniture pieces.

Useful Shelves Good To Conceal Unsightly Pipes

Pipes which run down the side of your living room wall, at which you probably have fumed many times, can be hidden successfully without the expense of tearing down the walls and enclosing the pipes.

You can build a set of useful shelves around them. One housewife did that and found it an extremely valuable project. She used the shelves to keep all kinds of odds and ends out of the way. Other novel methods can be devised with a little thought on the problem.

Protest Dumping WINDSOR, Ont., June 10.—International unity is such that Canadians have refused American soil. Detroit dredgers were believed to be dumping mud near the Canadian shore, and Windsor council objected.

Gift Plant Is Taken In Garden

This garden-graph shows the increasingly popular Easter plant, Aspidistra, often mentioned in the May issue. It is a very hardy, and, providing it has plenty of water, will grow well in either full sun or part shade.

The Aspidistra should only be used for forcing indoors every second year, remaining outdoors the alternating year where it will bloom in midsummer. Its flowers can well be used in bouquets, since cutting encourages more growth.

When the plant is to be forced for indoor bloom it should be potted in

Stories Here and There From His Books, Lectures and Conversations

OUR VANISHED INDUSTRIES

MOST of us, I think, admit that in their way the Maritime Provinces are the finest part of Canada. I don't mean by reason of their resources, but on account of the inhabitants themselves. You get there that fine sturdy type of people from the British Isles—a type that is rather than is—honorable, courageous, content with little, and enjoying life and making life rather than material. Indeed, the making of men and the "export of brains" has always seemed a leading industry of the Maritimes.

I had a very special opportunity to learn this when I was invited there for a week's lecture tour after I had been appointed to my chair at McGill. I not only had occasion to appreciate the type of men bred in that environment, but to form some idea of process and method of making them.

At my first lecture I was the guest of a bank manager in Moncton, and at the close of the evening we sat together over a pipe in his comfortable study, and we fell to talking of his earlier days.

"And how did you get your bank training?" I asked him. "I learned it," he answered, "as a boy on a Nova Scotia schooner of the old days. Every time I was told to do anything, I had to do it right off and without any question, or I got a swift kick in the backside. That's the training that fitted me."

The next day when I had moved on to another town, he was talking with the mayor of the town about his life and career. "Yes," he said, "I'm a self-made man and I'm not ashamed of it; or rather, I won't say I'm a self-made man—I'll say that the beginning of my success was made for me as a boy working on a Nova Scotia schooner."

"How was that?" I asked. "Well," said the mayor, "if I was told to do anything, I had to do it right off and without any question, or I got a swift kick in the backside."

I struck only one doubtful case. I had met a most cultivated man, well up in years, a professor of divinity in a church university. He told me modestly of his early struggles.

"Life was for me," he said, "a very arduous path. I doubt if I could have walked it if I had not had—hope you won't think my reasoning absurd—"

"I know," I interrupted, "you had a swift kick in the backside on a Nova Scotia schooner."

The old man looked at me calmly. "No," he said quietly, "I was going to say, a belief in the efficacy of prayer."

I felt that I had got in wrong and was humiliated. But it was all right. The old man was silent for a moment, and then he said:

"The other may have helped, too."

You see they can't tell a lie in the Maritimes even if they try to. So I've been thinking about this

Variety and Color Gives Gaiety to Corona Addition

Rooms Decorated Individually for Effective Style

Style, color and variety in decoration and furnishing give the new fifth floor addition to the Corona hotel a tone of difference and gaiety heretofore seldom found in hostilities.

For centuries it has been the chief aim of top-flight hotels to provide luxury and cater to the whims of guests in comfort and service, but artful use of color harmonies has added beauty and delight to the newly-added crown story of the Corona.

The new story, which contains 31 rooms, of which 18 are equipped with bath and shower, six with toilet and running water and nine with just running hot and cold water, is nearing completion at a cost of approximately $75,000.

FAST WORK DONE
General contractors on the work are Poole Construction Co., Ltd., who started the work March 22 and had it sufficiently advanced for the rooms to be occupied at the time of the Royal Visit, June 2.

For this record of fast and efficient work, which included erection of the story, partial interior finishing and installation of all fixtures, the Poole Construction Company has expressed appreciation of the assistance and co-operation of the sub-contractors.

Occupation of the rooms at present is suspended while the final touches are being given to interior finish, laying of carpets, hanging of draperies and other details of decoration and furnishing.

FACADE ENHANCED
The new story enhances the outward appearance of the Corona's imposing facade, crowning it with a handsome relief pattern worked in grey stone.

Most striking interior note is that the rooms are decorated individually, the carpets being of self-colored English broadloom of green, taupe, rose hyacinth and rust in the various rooms.

Upholstering of the smart, modern furniture is of contrasting colors and the bathrooms are beautifully finished in colored tiling.

MODERN FURNITURE
Furniture in most rooms is of the modern steel type, in bright enamel finishes and in some cases grain finishes. Dressers in the steel-furnished rooms have built-in writing desks, eliminating the space-filling separate desks.

In other rooms furniture is of walnut wood with the new wheat finish.

Radio and electric range outlets are built into all dressers, there are matched standard lamps and desk lamps, reading lamps on the beds, and general lighting, in direct, with smart steel fixtures.

Bedragones are the new chenille tufted spread and match the rich pastel shades of the walls.

Smart, newest style telephones are installed in all rooms. Heavy felt padding under the carpets results in complete quietness for all guests.

Halls are carpeted from wall to wall and corridor walls are of travertine, with an imitation stone finish. Ceilings are recessed and lighting is indirect.

Elevator doors, in black and silver, are of the new design, gained by vertical stripes broken by the "C", Corona insignia.

Imposing Facade Is Hotel Feature

Imposing facade of the Corona hotel with its newly added fifth story is shown here. Handmade stonework and sculpture is shown in the top-story relief pattern, worked in grey stone. Workmen on the scaffold are putting finishing touches to the work. The addition gives the Corona 31 new rooms, all decorated and furnished in individual style schemes.

Says Danzig Annexation By Germany Hoped For 'In the Near Future'

GREAT FIELDS OF ICE STREW VESSEL LANE

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., June 10.—Unprecedented fields of ice along Newfoundland's north-east coast were reported today by ships entering St. John's after failing to force their way through the barrier of tightly-packed floes. The field stretched in an apparently unbroken line from the northern tip of Newfoundland in Fogo, more than 200 miles down the eastern coast.

Worship in India

PURIL, India, June 10.—The Governor of Orissa and Lady Hubbuck attended a religious function here when the god Sivaswaram was worshipped with all ceremony.

FREE CITY OF DANZIG, June 10.—Albert Forster, Nazi district leader, told a rally of Danzig and East Prussian storm troops last night that Danzig hoped for annexation by Germany "in the future."

On the platform beside Forster was Victor Lutze, Adolf Hitler's chief of staff of the brown-shirted S.A. storm troops, who came for a two-day apert festival, which last night's demonstration opened.

His presence at the time of strained relations between Poland and Germany over the question of Danzig's return to the Reich heightened interest in the rally. Eight thousand S.A. men from East Prussia, which is separated from Germany proper by Danzig and Poland, the Polish corridor attended the rally, in addition to 10,000 from Danzig itself.

"A Lodging For The Night"

By ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

It was a November night in 1588. The snow fell steadily the silent streets in Paris; only the night patrol with its flickering lanterns was abroad in the bitter cold. Darkness enveloped the sleeping city, that in darkness except in one house that stood alone on its neighbors and tonight while all the city slept, a light glowed in the window and sparks flew from the chimney.

Within this house a group of men were gathered for the night; they counted their active luck to be in doors and secure on the coldest night in many a year. Two of them crooked over a table gambling. By the look of hatred on the face of one, it was easy to see that he had been losing all evening. Another man, fat and loosely made, was drinking wine and warming himself before the fire, now turning one side, now the other. The last man sat beside a table near the fire, writing verses. It was Francis Villon, Master of Arts of the University of Paris and renegade.

"How do you like my new ballad?" he asked, reading aloud from his pages. But his voice was interrupted by the crash of a falling body. The loser had tumbled, dead the winner at the gambling table.

The remaining men divided among themselves the contents of their companions' purse. They sat silent a moment thinking of the bitter cold into which they must plunge. They must not be found here, nor could they leave together. Each must seek alone for a lodging for the night. In bantering tone they spoke of how cold must be the cozies on the gallows awaiting in the wind on a nearby hill. The fat man shivered and drank more wine. Francis Villon sat down and with head in hand, mused the fickle-ness of life and death. While he sat thus, the fat man stole his purse and grinned to the other companions, as he signaled that he would divide the treasure. They prepared to leave before they were found with the murdered man.

Who would give him lodging? He could buy lodging; it was too cold a night to risk freezing. He felt for his purse and found an empty pocket.

Again toward the city walked Villon, wondering if he were already freezing. A heavy desire to sleep seized him; he must surely turn or he would die this night on the streets of Paris. Suddenly he remembered a deserted old hotel, long dropped into ruin. At least it would shelter him from the wind. On the porch as he prepared to crouch from the wind, he stepped on something hard and soft. It was a woman. Someone had robbed her already or she had died penniless, the Villon found nothing. Then he felt under her garter and found two one-cent pieces. He realized that the poor woman had died before she had spent her last coin.

He could not stay this night with a corpse, so he went to the home of a man whom he had once known. "Timidly, he knocked. When the man opened the wicket of the barred door and saw Francis Villon, he carried him with the hope that he would freeze. Then Villon tried his second and last hope; timidly he called to the residents to let him come in before he died from the cold. Expecting nothing, he was welcomed under the ledge so that the bucket of urine and only his legs and feet as it was dashed from the window.

Reaching conclusions he walked along. No money. No friend. He must break into a house. Then a better thought occurred. To go to a stranger and ask for lodging. This gave him courage. Boldly he knocked on the door of a large house. A noble old man received him and invited him into a large room, warmed by a brazer and filled with expensive furnishings. The host stated that he was alone and must go to his wife in the kitchen for food for his guest.

Quickly Villon examined the gold plate on the wall and the silverware and swiftly calculated how to get

Press Women Meet King At Reception

By BETH CAMPBELL
WASHINGTON, June 10.—King George, looking a little bit very gracious, met 14 ladies of the press in an unheated reception at the White House on Friday.

It was hard to decide who was most surprised—the young-looking King, or members of Mrs. Roosevelt's press conference who had hoped only for a sight of the Queen.

"Quite a lot of them," King George probably had never seen so many newspaper women at one time in his life. And those standing just behind the King heard Queen Elizabeth remark to Mrs. Roosevelt as she entered, "Oh, there are quite a lot of them, aren't there?"

There were a good many, Mrs. Roosevelt admitted. About a third of that number use their press conference privileges.

The women were standing in a double line stretching from the White House front door into the oval Blue Parlor. Mrs. Roosevelt, smiling, walked between the King and Queen as they strolled along, saying, "Good morning—good morning."

Earlier, with the writers seated in the Green Room, Mrs. Roosevelt and the Queen could not answer questions or hold a press conference because she does not do it in her own country, but that she wanted to meet the group individually.

OF GREAT VALUE
Mrs. Roosevelt said the Royal visit was of "very great value" to peace and understanding in the world.

She gave people a chance to actually see rulers of another country, to realize that they were not so different, and that they were all of the same kind.

At the Queen's arrival, she had a keen sense of the difficulties under which a great many people live and labor today. It is at these times, she said, that we must find one to sympathize with and understand us, and that is the purpose of the press conference.

Later members gathered at the home of Mrs. George Perring for a book meeting, at which Mrs. W. R. King, regent, presided.

Chapter funds were subscribed to several I.O.D.E. ventures, including the "Municipal Life Museum" for Mrs. R. C. Marshall and National Life membership for Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Woodhouse of Calgary.

Funds were also donated toward blind work and the annual summer camp sponsored by the I.O.D.E. welfare committee of the I.O.D.E. "Taggers" were down to assist the young tag day of the I.O.D.E. welfare committee.

A pleasant feature of the meeting was a presentation to Mrs. George Perring, the former Miss Mary MacLennan, the gift being a pair of Crown Derby china. Two new members, Mrs. H. W. Hines and Mrs. Proctor were welcomed to the chapter.

But Burns has a new baby son, just in time to keep him from taking out of action some good girls.

Royal Couple Entertain At Formal Dinner Given In British Embassy Friday

By SAM ROBERTSON

WASHINGTON, June 10.—King George and Queen Elizabeth turned host and hostess on Friday evening to entertain President and Mrs. Roosevelt at a special state dinner in their own "White House" in the British Embassy. Within the bare-brick Embassy walls, the two royal couples, and "To the President" and "To the Queen" the heady vintage of the old world. The Embassy dinner climaxed the busy week of the royal couple in this capital. Before them lay an overnight trip in New York with a visit to the World's Fair and then on to Hyde Park for an informal weekend with the Roosevelts.

COUNTERPART
In many respects the dinner last night at the embassy was a counterpart of the King and Queen's White House banquet in honor of their Majesties. It involved a similar, a few more companies of etiquette than did the President's dinner for the King and Queen.

The schedule led the Royal couple from the White House 10 minutes before the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Within that interval they were met at the embassy door by Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, and Lady Lindsay, and received the dinner guests in an upstairs drawing room.

When Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt arrived, the King and Queen were ready to greet their guests of honor, and present the other guests to them.

THE QUEEN IN ROSE
As always, the Queen was fresh and smiling in a Victorian frock of deep rose tulle. She wore a diamond tiara and two diamond necklaces. A heavy diamond chain was about her waist.

There were just 36 guests at the dinner, and the Queen was seated at the head of the table. The guests were seated at the head of the table. The guests were seated at the head of the table. The guests were seated at the head of the table.

APPEAL COURT UPHELDS FIXING OF GAS PRICES

British Columbia Tribunal Reverses Ultra Vires Decision
VANCOUVER, June 10.—The British Columbia court of appeal today upheld as ultra vires the price-fixing powers in the province's coal and petroleum products control board act. In this the court reversed a supreme court judgment of Mr. Justice A. M. Hanson who found the legislation ultra vires.

British Columbia Tribunal Reverses Ultra Vires Decision

Under the legislation the provincial fuel board issued an order requiring the price of gasoline from three to six cents a gallon, effective Oct. 28. The board also fixed the price of kerosene at 10 cents a gallon, reduced prices in Vancouver from 25 cents to 24 cents a gallon, both prices including a seven-cent government tax. Similar or higher reductions would have been effective in other parts of the province.

DOG

A few years ago Mr. Leon F. Whitney, a great dog enthusiast and author of many interesting works on canine subjects, realizing how little we know today of the dog of past ages, secured the cooperation of the owners of great dogs of the director of the American Peabody Museum of Yale University to allow him to study and prepare an exhibition of skulls. He assembled and mounted specimens of the great dogs of our time. I believe that the idea of this preservation for the future is a commendable one in one of the various breeds of dogs that have been attempted, though in some instances one may find the mounted remains of extinct animals, such as the body of the mammoth, buried in the earth.

DOG

by P. Hamilton Goodsell

A few years ago Mr. Leon F. Whitney, a great dog enthusiast and author of many interesting works on canine subjects, realizing how little we know today of the dog of past ages, secured the cooperation of the owners of great dogs of the director of the American Peabody Museum of Yale University to allow him to study and prepare an exhibition of skulls. He assembled and mounted specimens of the great dogs of our time. I believe that the idea of this preservation for the future is a commendable one in one of the various breeds of dogs that have been attempted, though in some instances one may find the mounted remains of extinct animals, such as the body of the mammoth, buried in the earth.

ever to listen to the case for the west and anxious to meet all fair requests that come from westerners.

"It is only when some of the demands become extreme or unfair that the eastern members begin to grow a little restive," Mr. Mayhew said.

"I don't think that a single western member of parliament," Mr. Mayhew went on, "would support the policy of boycotting wheat production in part of a permanent policy. It is an emergency measure."

Eastern members did not dispute the need of having laws emergency legislation. All the debate was about the future of which would be to be given an initial guarantee, and then the Canadian treasury could afford to pay, he added.

BEST SPEECHES
Three best speeches last session. In his view, were the addresses by 1. Mr. Minister W. L. Mackenzie King on the issue, agriculture, with United States and Canadian foreign policy, and given up to Mr. Grier, K.C., on the Brien gun control.

"It is very happy to see that Alberta now has cabinet representation and that its representative is as fine a man as Mr. McMillan."

The Edmonton regiment took an active part in the city's welcome to King and Queen here on June 2. On the day of their Majesty's visit the regiment was on duty at the Parliament buildings, and at night was given the honor of supplying the Guard of Honor which was on duty at the C.N.R. station when the royal train pulled out. His Majesty inspected the guard on that occasion and complimented officers and men on the fine turnout.

The brass band and the pipe band of the regiment was also on duty through the day and at night, the band being on duty at the Parliament buildings, and at night was given the honor of supplying the Guard of Honor which was on duty at the C.N.R. station when the royal train pulled out. His Majesty inspected the guard on that occasion and complimented officers and men on the fine turnout.

ADVENTURER NOW FLYING NORTH AREA

a considerable distance in a Papua, on December 27, 1938.

"I was flying a two-engine motor plane flying over the river near Koro in Papua. I was prospecting for oil for the Shell Oil Company at the time and had three of my company officers with me. As the plane came in contact with the water there was a terrific jolt, water splashed through the broken floor and into my eyes. I figured my motor and the plane climbed into the air. I couldn't get out what had happened."

"With luck I managed to land the crippled machine near a boat that was on the river and we were taken aboard it. The machine still floated and we hauled it to shore. It was not until an examination of the wreckage flying machine showed that a part of a crotchet's tail imbedded in the broken floor of the hull that I realized that I must have put the ship down right on top of a crotchet."

"The huge creatures, which reach a length of 30 feet, he submerged just below the surface of the flying water in the rivers with only their bulging eyes and the surface and it is practically impossible to see them."

NEW POSITION
Capt. G. A. Galt was flying in Papua-New Guinea and north-western Australia from January until March of this year. He returned to New York to take over his new position with American Metals.

He served in France with the American forces and was there that he received his captaincy. Since leaving it he has been promoted six times and is now a major in the United States Army. He served as a private pilot, was chief service supervisor and second sergeant for the Sikorsky Aircraft Corporation, and flew for the late Col. Jacob Ruppert's company in New York.

He wears a wristwatch which is a personal present to him from the famous aviator. "The colonel was a great pilot," he said, "and he was a great pilot."

FINEST PLACE
Northwestern Canada seems to be the finest place in the world to fly. The many lakes and rivers are a beautiful sight and a place can be landed make a picnic paradise. The weather is looking forward eagerly to his summer in the north.

Since it is so hot, he said, the veteran of the tropics who has been in the north for many years, he said, "I think I can handle them," he said, "I guess I'll have to."

Working around a river in a hot sun, he said, "I think I can handle them," he said, "I guess I'll have to."

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

SMALL-MOUTHED BASS

by WILLIAM KERSUS

KNOWN SCIENTIFICALLY AS MICROPTERUS DOLOMIEU, THIS WIRY FISH RANGES THROUGHOUT THE NORTHERN SECTIONS OF THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA, IN COOL STREAMS NOT QUITE GOLD ENOUGH FOR BROOK TROUT.

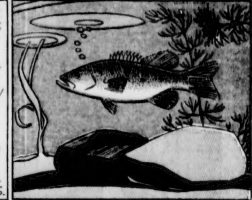

THE AVERAGE WEIGHT OF THOSE CAUGHT IS FROM ONE TO TWO POUNDS, ALTHOUGH SOME DO REACH A WEIGHT OF SIX POUNDS.

MANY FISHERMEN SAY THAT, INCH FOR INCH, THE SMALL-MOUTH IS THE GAMEST FISH THAT SWIMS.

THE JAWS OF LARGE-MOUTHED BASS OPEN TO A POINT WELL BACK OF THE EYES... AS SHOWN ABOVE... WHICH DISTINGUISHES THEM FROM THE SMALL-MOUTH.

ALTHOUGH KNOWN AS A BLACK BASS, THE SMALL-MOUTH IS NOT BLACK! IT VARIES FROM SILVERY TO GOLDEN GREEN, WITH DARK COLOR BANDS.

IN SPRING, OR EARLY SUMMER, THE BASS MOVE INTO SHALLOW WATER TO BREED. AFTER THE EGGS ARE LAID IN THE SHALLOW NEST IN THE MUD, THE MALE GUARDS THEM UNTIL THEY HATCH, AND EVEN SWIMS WITH THE YOUNG FOR SOME TIME.
